

What would a safe and effective data linkage system look like?

Data sharing and linkage help to answer society's important questions

Analysts have the skills and resources needed to carry out high-quality data linkage and analysis

Data sharing decisions are ethical, timely, proportionate and transparent

Government demonstrates its trustworthiness to share and link data through robust data safeguarding and clear public communication

Data are documented adequately, quality assessed and continuously improved

Project proposal assessments are robust, efficient and transparent